Looking at the News With Col. Hugh Clark

Never use the telephone during a thunder-storm. Lightning might get your number.

What can you expect from witnesses when even thermometers can't agree

A writer explains that what they used to call in olden days a "tiring room" was a room where ladies dressed. That does away with the theory that it was a garage.

Short fiction story: Once upon a time there lived a woman who was perfectly satisfied with her own weight.

Since the sales tax was increased, industrial concerns are divided into two classes, absorbent and non-absorbent.

A farmer in Middlesex reported to the authorities that woman was going to the river near his farm and bathing in the nude. The authorities doubt the story. They suspect he wants to sell his farm for more than its real value.

Alas, they had been friends in youth, but they went for a trip round the world together.

F. L. Paxton says "there are only two means of raising money known to governments; those are loans and taxes." If there is no thought of repudiation there is only one means, viz. taxes. Loans, if paid with interest, but increase the amount that has to be paid by taxes. They are a liability that by a timely death we hope to leave to posterity.

A man awaiting execution for murder spends his time reading Wells' Outlines of History. It is understood that it is no part of prison discipline. He does it voluntarily.

A resolution to borrow all the money necessary to relieve unemployment and (more) distress should be couched with a mental resolution that when conditions improve we shall settle down to the drab business of paying our debts. We didn't do it before in our prosperous days and it is not likely the mental resolution would ever receive a third reading.

"Do nations arm because of fear?" asks the Manchester Guardian. They do and moreover they fear because of arms.

Clydesiders are in the unenviable position of being judged by the class of representatives they send to Westminster.

Lloyd George denounces Sir John Symon for deserting the ship. He knows now how Asquith felt. It is true that on that occasion L.G. did not desert the ship. He stayed right with her. All he did was throw the captain overboard and take the helm himself. It is curious how hard it is to forgive others for doing what we feel at liberty to do ourselves. But Lloyd George in a denunciatory vein is a delight. If he were given to profanity he could put sailors and troops to the blush. He is a master of flouts and jibes and sneers. What could be better than what he said of the Cecil at the time they were opposing his land scheme—their fingers dripping with the fat of sacrifice, a throw-back to Elizabethan days, when the initial Cecil profited by the confiscation of monasteries.

Local Anglican Picnic a Splendid Success

On Wednesday, July 29th the Anglican Sunday school and congregational picnic to Little Bow was held. Around ten carloads got away to a good start at 2 p.m. The weather man was ideal.

During the first part of the afternoon bathing was much enjoyed by the majority. Later both young and old participated in sports. The following events were carried off in fine style: 5 yds. flat race (8 yrs.), 50 yds. (8-10), 75 yds. (10-15), 100 yds. older boys and girls, 3-legged race, V.C. race 100 yds., wheelbarrow race. In the men's race, great training was in evidence. The Mayor and Mr. P. B. Discher also ran and "Daddy" Daines, taking into consideration his age, proved that his foot-treatment is all that it is cracked up to be.

One egg arrived whole in the egg and spoon race. Mrs. Carruthers and Mr. Hewes excellently in the nimble art of skipping. Last but not least, the men's tug-of-war was quite an event. Our thanks go to Mr. H. Dorrington and Mr. J. Conn a most efficient sports committee.

Mrs. D. C. Jones and her able committee are to be congratulated on the stunning refreshments served up in three sittings. The Rector was present at all three. Why is he so slim?

Many thanks to all the friends who so kindly assisted towards a most successful and enjoyable picnic.

Bears are becoming common in the Priddis district, and losses of lambs and pigs are reported.

Claresholm council proposes to issue debentures to the amount of $5000 for building cement sidewalks.

A Scotchman recently played the bagpipes for forty-eight hours without stopping. He probably had them on two days free trial.

LARGE BAND CONCERT SHRINERS' AUSPICES

Buy a ticket—any number of them that you might desire to take. The price of each is a half dollar. Each is good for admission of one to the "Mammoth Band Concert," under Shrine auspices, to be held at the arena in Calgary on September 18th. The purchaser will with each ticket also be entitled to make an estimate or a guess as to how long an automobile engine will run on 7 gallons, 3 quarts, 1 pint, and 1 gill of gasoline and the person who submits the nearest correct figures will win a Buick auto valued at $2045. There are also twelve other prizes.

The entire enterprise is being promoted under the auspices already named, and the proceeds of the splendid venture will be devoted to the support of the Shriners' hospitals for crippled children. The benevolence of the Shriners and the excellence of their institutions are here and elsewhere well known and their methods by experience understood at Vulcan, four patients from town and district having been treated at the wonderful hospital at Winnipeg.

Ticket sales locally will be promoted by Miss Esa Tuttle, one of our young and active girls, with pleasing presence and manner, who has developed a talent that won for her the first prize in a recent ticket-selling competition. Every dollar spent in the purchase of tickets is well spent, and it is expected that Vulcan will maintain its place in the support of an enterprise of merit.

Greetings From Vulcan's First Pastor

Rev. J. N. Brunton has received the following letter from Rev. Geo. Murray, B.A., of Zephyr, Ontario, which will be of interest to many here:

"I noticed in 'The New Outlook' reference to the church at Vulcan 'coming of age' and I wish to congratulate the congregation in having made such splendid progress during those years.

I had the honor to be the first one to conduct services in Vulcan before the steel was laid. These church services were held over Mr. Lindsay's hardware store and I shall always remember his interest and kindness towards the cause. The Elms' brothers were there; they owned a general store in the prospective town; Mr. Robson a farmer over from what was then Fernside school—he was one of the faithful ones. There were others, but just forget their names, who helped in the establishing of the church in what I believe is one of the best towns in Southern Alberta. I was on that mission field for one year and on my return to college Rev. D. K. Allan followed me. It was my hope that some day I would return and see the place of my first labors but failing that, I have watched with much interest in seeing this charge grow up with the town and become, as I am sure it has, a centre of real aggressive Christianity.

Again I wish to convey my heartiest congratulations to the congregation praying that the cause of Christ shall prosper in their midst and that your labors shall be fruitful amongst them.

Under Red Cross and City Council arrangements, idle veterans of Calgary will be housed under the grandstand of the Victoria park. Baths are being provided and cots and field kit-chens.

A citizen who was seven years in arrears for his home paper, who had never had a good word to say for the editor, and who was always opposed to public improvements, was dying, so the latest story runs. Weekly Letter From Local Health Unit

One service the modern medical practitioner is prepared to offer and one which most neglected, is periodic health examination. We are all willing to have our ears and other machinery checked over periodically, many accidents are prevented thereby but it does not at all compare with the grief which might be prevented by a periodic examination of our bodies. It is estimated that in Canada 100,000 persons are continuously ill from preventable diseases—periodic health examination would prevent much of that illness. We often hear the expression: "not sick enough to see a doctor." There are many illnesses in which the symptoms are not manifest to ourselves until the stage for optimum treatment is past. The only way to be entirely free from them is by prevention.

Most of the larger insurance companies have recently installed a scheme whereby they offer certain of their policy holders a yearly examination. They find it a paying proposition to spend $5.00 a year on each policy holder in an attempt to keep them well. They also spend considerably more to get those policy holders to take advantage of the offer.

The Okotoks-High River Health Unit holds regular Life Extension Clinics at which time periodic examination of apparently healthy people will be carried on. A time table clinics may be seen in any post office. HIGH SCHOOL vs. CAYLEY FINE EXHIBITION GAME

One of the best exhibitions of baseball seen this season on the Vulcan grounds was the game between the Cayley seniors and the Vulcan High School, which took place here on Friday last. The contest was marred by the unfortunate collision between Pritchard and Harper of the local team, who collided between home and first in an attempt to catch a foul ball. Both suffered minor, but very painful injuries which necessitated their retirement from the game. With Ferguson behind the bat, Bob Marshall on first and King at second the game was continued.

Cayley scored two in the third; two bases on balls, a single and a home run, netted them four in the fourth. One in each of the fifth, sixth and seventh brought the count up to nine. Vulcan scored one in the third and seven in the fifth including two home runs making a total eight.

The pitching and batting of Caspell, the Cayley pitcher, was the outstanding feature of the game, winning his own game by scoring three runs and batting in several more. McAskile and Collier worked on the mound for Vulcan, and with the regular infield would have had no difficulty in turning back the Cayley batters.

Men everywhere are coming more and more to understand and appreciate the part the rural press is taking in the affairs of the nation. And its usefulness has increased with its prosperity and the public's confidence in it.

CHARLES CLARK, Proprietor
TOM WHITTINGHAM, Editor and Manager

BE OURSELVES

Dame Merial Talbot, D.B.E., of England, who recently visited Canada with a party of British headmistresses, records her impressions of Canada which are published in a recent Calgary Herald. Amongst other comments she says: "Another impression I have gained is that Canada is going to be no copy of either Great Britain or the United States. She has obviously received much of value from both. Her love for the 'Old Country' is strong and deep. British, yes, she is, and progressive with much of the progressiveness of the United States. But always she is herself, Canada, developing on her own national lines and carving out her own destiny—with vision and energy."

Possibly Dame Talbot sees much more clearly, than the multitudes that are always viewing with alarm, the Americanization of this great land. Almost daily in the public press, someone expresses distress and doubt over awful fate that is overtaking Canada. We see too many Hollywood pictures. We read too many American books. We listen to too many American radio programs. The latest complaint is that we enjoy too many American jokes. So far as that goes, the more jokes we can enjoy, the better for us, whether they be Chinese, French, British or American.

As a matter of fact, there is close kinship between American and Canadian appreciation of humor, and there is no use in deploring it. It may be the quality in the air, or the general spaciousness of the two countries. But the snap of American humor does find instant response with us. There is a mellow and sustaining quality in British humor which is thoroughly delightful but we just don't meet it everyday. There is the "typical Western" type of humor, which is quite as much Western Canadian as Western American, and which delights in "tall impossible" stories. We owe that special weakness to the intoxicating air and the general largeness of our surroundings.

It seems unnecessary fussy to be continually taking our blood tests to see if we are growing more American. As Dame Talbot says, we are neither British nor American, we are ourselves.

Many fail to realize that for four or five generations now, some members of most Canadian families, have gone to United States to seek their fortunes. As a rule they succeeded. United States received them with open arms. Most of these became naturalized and in this way the great majority of older Canadians have quite an array of American cousins, with whom they have kept in regular touch.

On the other hand, after a generation or so, few Canadians ever returned to the Old Country. In the course of time, with the sea between most tangible ties with the old land dropped.

It would be unnatural if the third and fourth generation should remain as British as the great grandfather who came to Canada. On the other hand at no time in Canada's history, could there be found a stronger appreciation of our British heritage, than today. We are conscious of, and proud of, all that Britain has given us in the way of constitution and government, in the way of standards of character and a healthy and vigorous heredity.

At the same time it should be no reproach to us that we do enjoy playing with our next door neighbor. She makes a delightful playmate and we speak the same language.

But we do not intend to copy every thing she does. In many respects, our own ways seem to us the best.

We intend to develop our own virtues and discourage our own failings along our own lines. If we are not perhaps as excitable and emotional as our American cousins, neither are we as static and inevitably right as our British forebears. We are merely ourselves.

TO LET DOWN BARS?

At the U.F.A. convention of Okotoks-High River riding held in Okotoks last week, one resolution presented is a general interest. It was as follows: "That in order to give U.F.A. supporters in the towns and villages a voice in selecting U.F.A. candidates, we open our convention to any non-political groups such as Boards of Trade, to send delegates and have the same privileges as our own delegates at our conventions."

Although nothing decisive resulted, the resolution is forwarded to the various locals for consideration, and will be taken up at the next convention.

The fact that the resolution was amicably discussed and considered, is indication of a considerable change in sentiment since the first U.F.A. election in 1921. At that time there was an intensity of "farm versus town" propaganda on both sides, which was as unfortunate as unpleasant and as unfounded as any of the old party cries.

But the last few years have been noteworthy for the increasing association between farm and town organizations and for a realization of the real community of interests. It is ridiculous to assume that the welfare of the people living in a country town, can be divorced from the welfare of the surrounding rural dwellers. There is a complete inter-dependence and the misconception of 1921 have pretty much gone into the discard.

However in the matter of U.F.A. candidates it has been seen that the political organization has always adopted a contradictory attitude. The political delegates, all accredited as active U.F.A. members, meet to nominate a candidate. After that, they invite and very often expect, the support of this candidate by people whom they consider ineligible for their convention. It just doesn't add up right.

Whether the resolution as presented would cover the situation, whether there will be amendments, or whether it will be turned down, is something for the locals to decide upon, and next convention will see the question settled.

There is no rush in the meantime. The big advantage that this summer has over 1930, is that there is no necessity for getting all steamed up on political issues and political policies.

DEATH SALESMEN

Those who have not already read the leading article in August 1-Maclean's, would do well to do so. Under the title "The Salesmen of Death," it is a denunciation of the armament industry, which creates wars to make money, and it carries the authority of the author Lieut. Col. George Drew.

In this age of bunking and exposure, of all the industrial monsters who fatten on the little people of society, none are so appalling as the makers of arms and ammunition, who are not content with offerings of gold, but must have human blood.

Armed with chapter and verse, with dates and figures to back up his attack, Col. Drew exposes the machinations of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, of Sir Basil Zaharoff, "the Mystery Man of Europe," Vickers Limited of England, the Maxim Ammunition Company and others, in blocking disarmament proposals, in promoting international armament for the purpose of maintaining sales, in the ownership of newspapers and in direct influence on men in public office.

And when, by sowing seeds of dissension here and there by creating an apprehensive national demand for more and more armaments, they bring about a crisis in some obscure corner, then the little people shoulder arms and step out bravely to kill each other.

Most curious of all are the instances cited, by which these great munition makers have sat in the international councils called for the purpose of deciding whether to continue fighting or to call a truce. Zaharoff is quoted as having been "the confidant of Lloyd George," and at a conference in France in 1917 "all for continuing the war." Is it any wonder.

Several years before the Great War when the Canadian Minister of Militia and Naval Affairs, visited London, Zaharoff remarked to Mr. Brodeur, one of the Ministers, "Business is bad. How could it be otherwise with Campbell-Bannerman's disarmament policy. We haven't had a war in seven years." This remark, conveyed to the Canadian Premier Laurier, made a profound impression, indicating the surprising frankness of England's greatest armament producer to Campbell-Bannerman's disarmament proposals.

It is all told in the article, with horrifying clarity, and for the purpose of rousing Canadians to the necessity for a decisive stand at the next disarmament Conference to be held in Geneva in February 1932.

Col. Drew points out that fear of war will not prevent war, that the talk of removal of profits from war would entail such governmental machinery as would be impractical. "The armament industry is fully entrenched, the forces of peace disorganized. But Great Britain and United States, the two creditor nations can insist as a condition of the extension of the war debt moratorium that the problem of disarmament be faced honestly, with their own governments doing the same thing."

"Canadians should study the question and be prepared to make their voice heard, demanding as a first step the elimination of these 'propagandists of hate,' and demanding the dissolution of the alliance between armament production and corporate profit sharing enterprise."

Only by reading the article can the full story be conveyed.

THE DAMAGE IS DONE

There is no doubt that the Liberal party of Canada has emerged from the report on the Beauharnois project with its prestige seriously impaired. Although the moderationists of the Conservative press show no inclination to involve Mackenzie King, the Liberal leader, in any intentional misdoing, yet his most ardent supporter cannot deny that he was most unfortunate in his choice of friends.

To the Liberals in Canada, those average citizens who have grown up in the principles of Liberalism and believe in them, the revelations of the Beauharnois scandal have struck a serious blow; not so much from the standpoint of money, as that the whole connection was a direct betrayal of the principles of Liberalism as fought for by William Lyon Mackenzie, George Brown, and those sturdy invulnerable pioneers of the party. The interests of the people have been betrayed for the benefit of private corporations.

Liberal leaders have apparently drifted far from those early ideals and convictions which first brought the Canadian "Grits" into aggressive being and it is this fact which has concerned most deeply the masses of Liberal voters.

Hon. McKenzie King asks for an investigation of all campaign funds during the past few years. No matter what revelations there might be, they could hardly minimize the Beauharnois episode, and whether any good could be accomplished by washing publicly all the dirty linen for years back, is a question.

Campaign fund scandals are not the sole heritage of any one country or any one party. The pages of history are ample proof of this. Provincial parties as well as Dominion have come to grief over campaign fund disclosures, and will no doubt continue to do so, until there is more candor on the subject.

As one paper has pointed out, the responsibility for these situations goes back to Mr. Average Citizen. He likes to hang round a committee room, he likes to listen to high powered speakers, and to watch them galloping madly from town to town and school house to school house. He likes banners and flags and hurrah, to give the election a tone, and instead of stepping out like a conscientious citizen to do his own voting under his own steam, he likes to be conveyed to the polling booth. But he does not want to help foot the bill for all these expenses. Money from outside is necessary and where does it come from and where does it all go.

So far as we know, the Progressives have no unseen sources from which they expect offerings. Each local has to contribute its share in taking care of campaign expenses. This puts a fairly heavy burden up to individual supporters, but it undoubtedly gives them a strong personal interest in their candidates.

Another suggestion from the Victoria Times is that every contribution over a set moderate sum, to party treasuries shall be published as it is received with the name of the donor, and with drastic penalties attached to violations.

Undoubtedly some of the Liberal leaders at Ottawa, have been caught with the goods, and possibly Mackenzie King is smarting under the belief that his party is carrying an undue burden of shame, reckoning over a period of years. Yet it is doubtful if the majority of people are greatly concerned in any further campaign fund exposures, outside of a complete clearing up of several unexplained features of Beauharnois.

Partisan feeling in Canada at present is completely subservient to more vital matters. What Canadian people want above everything is that the acute problems of unemployment and sluggish markets should be remedied.

What our unemployed need is work and not anything in the nature of a dole, and if that work is necessary and adding to the wealth of the country, then it is the kind that should be done.—Lethbridge Herald.

WORLD WHEAT SUPPLY DROPS

World Crop Likely to be Smaller in 1931-32 Season

In the State and Federal Marketing Activities, published in Washington, there appears this paragraph that should brighten the outlook for 1932:

The world supply of wheat—production plus carry over—in all countries except China, for the 1931-32 season, now seems likely to be about 250 million bushels less, or nearly 5 per cent., less than for the preceding season. Present prospects indicate a world carryover somewhat larger than last year's and a world crop considerably smaller. Preliminary reports as to production, acreage and crop conditions indicate a production in the northern hemisphere, excluding Russia and China, of about 3,075 million bushels less than last year's crop.

Such a statement from a most reliable source will have an energizing effect upon business this fall. The huge surpluses that looked so hopeless this spring will dwindle and with its decrease the price of wheat will rise. There is a silver lining to the cloud.—Exchange.

HONORS MOTHER'S 84TH BIRTHDAY

On July 29, the family of Mrs. Laycraft senior gathered at the old home at Blackie in celebration of their mother's eighty-fourth birthday.

Members of the family present were her daughter, Mrs. A. M. Macdonald, with whom Mrs. Laycraft lives, and five sons, Robert, William and James of Blackie, with Isaac and George from High River. A sister, Mrs. Thurber of Blackie, also was present. These immediate members, together with their respective families, made a gathering of thirty-eight all of whom had some kindly message for their mother and grandmother. Mrs. Laycraft has not been in very good health lately, and was unable to participate in the picnic which was held on the home grounds. But from her room, she enjoyed the meeting of the clan and was none the worse for the unwelcome excitement.

The noteworthy feature of the picnic supper was the birthday cake made by Mrs. James Laycraft which was beautifully decorated to show the date and occasion.

ATTACK ON DISMAL DOCTRINE OF WAR

Statement That War is "Nature's Pruning Hook" Vigorously Refuted by Sir Hubert Baker

There is a present, and very wise disposition on the part of society to view with suspicion any advocate of the virtues of war. It is known that the resources of the makers of armaments are turned toward influencing nations toward an acceptance of war as necessary and corrective. They use as mouth pieces, members of all classes of society, who are performing their mission if they can sow one seed for the furtherance of war.

Recently, Sir Arthur Keith, British scientist, declared "that war is nature's pruning hook for dealing with the human orchard."

This unfortunate metaphor left Sir Arthur Keith open to attack by Sir Hubert Baker, who finds the comparison peculiarly false. He says:

"In a word, Sir Arthur invites us to believe that nature has devised war for the purpose of improving the human race by the removal of the superfluous."

"If this were indeed so, then we might expect all wars to show a subsequent improvement in the human stock."

"Examine just what happens in the actual process of pruning. The gardener, seeking for good fruit, curbs luxuriant nature with his sharp hook, and the tree is sustained and strengthened in the process."

"Does war do that for the human orchard?"

"Quite obviously it does not."

"War deprives the people engaged in it of their finest specimens, leaving the middle-aged, the old, and the physically defective to carry on the race. The inevitable result of the last war, for example, was the heartbreaking destruction of our most magnificent young men, and, through them, of the unborn generations that would have sprung from them."

"Under modern conditions of war all we really prove in the end is superiority in material resources, and each combatant nation ends with the common loss of its best types of manhood."

"Nature wields a pruning hook to some purpose. But it is not war. Nature's method is to kill the weakling early in life. It may be a harsh process, but it is a very efficacious one. And it is a process opposed to war—war, which carries off the finest and the best."

"The other day, talking to a busy medical practitioner, I was distressed to hear him say: 'I am overwhelmed with a sense of the futility of my work.'"

"When I asked him why, he replied 'Much of my life is spent on keeping life in little human creatures who would be better out of the world. We keep them alive by scientific means. They grow to maturity, weedy and inferior. But they breed—they breed prolifically.'"

"On humanitarian grounds much of modern medical work consists in just this scientific war upon nature with her pruning-hook."

"The degenerate, the sub-normal, and the 'mental' are allowed to live—are succoured as though the destiny of the race depended upon their preservation."

"I suggest that the ruthless destruction of her own mistakes is nature's method of pruning the human orchard. With that method we are interfering. We are interfering by preserving by means of scientific knowledge life in what is not fit to live. We are interfering by making the strong carry the weak upon their backs."

"We must not take seriously this dismal doctrine of the inevitability and ultimate blessedness of war. War robs us of our best."

We need to know no more of it. It leaves our second and third best to carry on the race. To say that this is nature's method of pruning the human orchard is, surely, a perversion of the hard, incontrovertible facts."

Sir Arthur Keith has enunciated this dark doctrine. If there lies within its heart some secret explanation

WHEAT BONUS PAID AT EDMONTON

Whether Grain is sold at Time or Not Five Cents Bonus Paid at Time of Grading

The government bonus of five cents a bushel is paid on the 1931 crop alone, and farmers in selling must certify that only this year's wheat is being disposed of.

The government issues a cheque book to all licensed elevators and the agent is required to write a cheque to the seller for the five cents a bushel in addition to the cheque for the grain. Banks will cash these.

Whether the grower sells his wheat at the time it is graded, the agent will issue the cheque immediately upon grading.

If the grower of grain resides on the land of some other party, and sells the wheat on a percentage basis to be shared by each, the owner gets no share of the government five cent bonus, which goes entirely to the grower.

WILD LIFE IN FOREST FIRES

Another Vital Reason for Preserving Forests is the Suffering to Wild Life in Fires

New York Times: American Forest contains an article of Duane H. Kipp on the vicissitudes of wild life in a great forest fire which every outdoor loving American should read. It is a horrible tale of the suffering of fish, birds and wild animals noted in a survey made in 1930 by the Wisconsin conservation commission, after the worst forest fire year Wisconsin has experienced since the introduction of forest protection. And since barely one per cent. of the forest fires in Wisconsin are started by lightning, man must take upon himself the blame for the agony he inflicts upon helpless creatures.

Will the hunter or camper ever learn to think of the ravages that result from carelessly flipping a lighted cigarette into the brush, or leaving his fire burning when he has done with it? Nor should he consider only the immediate suffering and actual death of the wild creatures for the greatest number perish from the after effects of the fire. Food is destroyed. The bare woods lend the animals no protective covering and they become an easy prey. Warmed and ash poisoned water and the lack of oxygen combine to kill fishes. The survey showed that fully 60 per cent of the deer suffered from badly burned feet. Thousands of eggs are destroyed in spring fires and mothers are found dead in their vain efforts to protect their eggs and their young.

"The domestic coal of Alberta is superior to coke or to the anthracite coal that comes from the United States. This has been proved by test shipments which were brought down here by the government some years ago, when 33,000 tons were placed in the homes of Ontario. That supply gave splendid results."

"The difficulty in the past has been this. When the coal was shipped here and marketed the householder, having used it, was so satisfied with the results that later on he tried to get further supplies of Alberta coal. But he found that the dealer did not have it; he could not bring it in on account of the freight rates, which had gone up in the meantime. Once a permanent rate is fixed and stability established in handling the coal shipped to the dealers, the dealers will keep supplies of it; and we have every hope that, under these circumstances, Alberta domestic coal will take its place in the markets of Ontario."

"The rate has now been fixed at $6.75 per ton until March 31 next and I may say to the house and to the administration that in the meantime we intend to do everything humanly possible to bring pressure to bear upon the government with a view to having the rate made a fixture for all time to come, as a maximum at any rate."

"Perhaps I might refer to the situation in Winnipeg. I have confidence in the use of tariffs; I have confidence in the dumping clause, and so on. They serve their purpose. But at the same time I submit that in Ontario, and in other parts of Canada, there must be a spirit of loyalty and a desire to help the producers of this country, wherever they may operate, to sell their commodities to the consuming public. In Winnipeg there is a large public utility in the central heating plant, and recently that concern purchased 43,000 tons of coal from the United States. I am subject to correction, but I believe that this coal was brought in considerable time ago; and those who are interested in these plants in Winnipeg—they are American interests—gave the Alberta operators to understand that they proposed to purchase bituminous coal for their purposes. When the time came for their purchase, without giving the Alberta operators an opportunity to tender, they placed their orders with their friends in Virginia. Now, they made no money; they saved nothing; and they did not get as good coal as the Alberta operators could have given them. All they did was to assist some American friends in Virginia. And while they helped their American friends to the extent of 43,000 tons, they withdrew that much business from the coal mines of southern Alberta, at a time when the miners of that district are very much in need of employment in face of the coming winter."

ELECTRICITY AND AUTOMOBILES

One Motor Vehicle for Every Eight Persons in Canada; 57 per cent. Canadian Homes Electrified

Electricity and the manufacture of automobiles are the two outstanding features of Canadian industrial growth in recent years. Both have come to occupy more prominent places among the manufacturing processes and products, and both now play leading parts in the everyday life of the Dominion.

There is one motor vehicle in use in Canada for eight persons, and Canada stands second only to the United States among the countries of the world in this respect. Over 57 per cent. of all the homes of Canada, both urban and rural, are using electricity. In Ontario and Quebec the ratio is over two-thirds and in British Columbia over three-quarters.

WELL AND TRULY GOVERNED

It Costs Each Man, Woman and Child in Canada, $8.98 for Upkeep Federal Government

An article in the Sherbrooke Daily Herald makes pleasant summer reading. It presents figures from the 1929 official report to show where the money goes in Ottawa in salaries. The next question is, are they all worth what they cost?

Salaries to the Civil Service in Ottawa city were $17,480,408. For outside Civil Service, the salaries were $72,408,438. Travelling expenses paid by the government to its staff amounted to $4,481,883. Automobiles and repairs were $783,076.

The Prime Minister's salary was $15,000 with a seasonal allowance of $4,000 for travelling.

All the nineteen Cabinet Ministers got $10,000 straight salary, $4,000 seasonal allowance and varying expense allowance. In place of a free car and upkeep, the nineteen have been given $2,000 a year expense money to keep their own cars in gas and drivers.

Deputy Ministers got from $9,000 to $12,000.

The Civil Service Commission, three members, received each $6,000.

The Leader of the Opposition received $10,000 plus his $4,000 seasonal indemnity.

These are merely the big fellows. All the private members add their quota, and as the Sherbrooke Herald remarks some are worth infinitely more than they receive, and some are quite negligible.

FEWER DUCKS SHORTER SEASON

Bag Limit and Time Limit Reduced for Conservation of Wild Ducks

A shorter time for shooting wild ducks and geese will be the order this year. Dates for the open season have been set by the provincial game department as from noon on September 1 to, and including, November 14, north of the Clearwater and Athabasca rivers, and from September 15 to November 14, south of those rivers. This is a shortening up of one month as compared with last year.

The bag limit for ducks will be 15 per day in September and 25 for the balance of the season, with a maximum of 100 birds for the season. In the case of geese, the limit will be 10 per day, with a total of 30 for the season.

URGES ALTA COAL BEFORE HOUSE

Dr. Stanley Presents Arguments in Advance of Use of Alberta Coal in Other Provinces

No private member has been more conscientious and capable than Dr. Stanley, in presenting the needs of his province before the Dominion House.

In a recent debate on the problems of the coal provinces versus the great quantities of anthracite brought in from United States, Dr. Stanley stated the case for Alberta:

"The statement has been made that the domestic coal of Alberta cannot be transported economically to Ontario. I cannot allow that statement to go uncontradicted. Of course, that coal could not be brought here economically when the rates were up to $8 or $10 a ton but now we have practically an assured rate of $6.75 a ton; and Alberta domestic coal can be sold on the markets of Ontario to provide a substantial portion of the fuel requirements of the people of this province."

"The domestic coal of Alberta is superior to coke or to the anthracite coal that comes from the United States. This has been proved by test shipments which were brought down here by the government some years ago, when 33,000 tons were placed in the homes of Ontario. That supply gave splendid results."

"The difficulty in the past has been this. When the coal was shipped here and marketed the householder, having used it, was so satisfied with the results that later on he tried to get further supplies of Alberta coal. "The rate has now been fixed at $6.75 per ton until March 31 next and I may say to the house and to the administration that in the meantime we intend to do everything humanly possible to bring pressure to bear upon the government with a view to having the rate made a fixture for all time to come, as a maximum at any rate."

"Perhaps I might refer to the situation in Winnipeg. I have confidence in the use of tariffs; I have confidence in the dumping clause, and so on. They serve their purpose. But at the same time I submit that in Ontario, and in other parts of Canada, there must be a spirit of loyalty and a desire to help the producers of this country, wherever they may operate, to sell their commodities to the consuming public. ON MOUNT HEAD

I think it was God, lay down to rest,
On that long ago sixth day
even;
And He cooled His cheek
Against the snowy peak,
While He dreamed of the worlds
He'd given.

He thought of the grandeur
Of each of the spheres
And then of the glories of Heaven,
But the couch He chose
By the Highwood rose
And there is His image graven.

Into the hills, lift up your eyes,
O who dwell in the Valley
below;
O the strength and peace of that great stone face
And the purity of its snow.

District Health Service Moving Along Smoothly

From different parts of the Okotoks-High River Health Unit, come excellent reports of the work of the officials in charge, and the response of the public to the service.

The printed schedule of dates for each central point of the area, is being followed out systematically, with Dr. Saunders and Nurse Jones meeting the people at each point and establishing satisfactory contacts. Both are greatly interested in the work and feel that it cannot fail to be of great help in maintaining general health.

The central points for the clinics are Vulcan, Mossleigh, Blackie, Nanton, High River, Cayley, Okotoks, Turner Valley, Black Diamond, Red Deer Lake and Foss community hall.

The baby clinics and pre-natal and life extension clinics are definitely scheduled for certain days of certain months at each point up to June 1932. Through the district represented on the directorate board and through the various service clubs in each district, the word is no doubt spread regarding the date of these clinics.

The interest and co-operation of district organizations in reaching the entire population will be of greatest help to Dr. Saunders and Nurse Jones. It will make it possible for the these officials to achieve the maximum in service.

On the re-opening of the schools of the unit, the examination of the school children of the area will be commenced.

Beulah Evrens has returned home after visiting her sisters in Gleichen. The junior boys of Queenstown and Milo are enjoying a week camping at the river near Arrowwood under supervision of Mr. Brown.

The lawn social given by the United Ladies' Aid proved a great success last Friday evening. The two games of softball, Queenstown and Vulcan teams playing the two Milo teams were the main attraction for the evening. The first game the Queenstown girls won by the score of 18-8. It might be interesting to know that most of the Milo girls that played on that team have never played ball before except for a week's practice. The second game was played by Vulcan and Milo ladies, the score being 6-6. Both games were very exciting. Milo ladies expect to play Vulcan again in the near future. After the games the crowd was favored by two readings given by Mrs. King-Smith of Queenstown and Miss Eileen Brinker. There were several musical selections also, a saxophone duet by Dean Haggins and Harold Shore, a quartette by Mrs. Northcote, Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Synge and Mrs. McRoberts, accompanied by guitars. The stringed orchestra also gave several selections. The evening then closed by singing God Save the King.
